

Round 4 Fantasy Write-up:

First and foremost, I must apologise for the tardiness of the report this week. It took 3 days to get screened and approved by the HR and Legal departments of the office, due to the racy images and coarse language.

Another very good individual performance from Jack Zacker with 166 points, much to the displeasure of Amelio adding to the extreme tension between her and Boo for the grave selection debacle. Sir Richard Hockney came in at 159 points with a well compiled innings, which was brought short by yet another torn hamstring. It really is a wonder if there's any muscle left in that leg. Burra Reed has shown his consistency with 147 points giving Clev nightmares on how he can justify his continued selections in the E grade. Other excellent individual efforts include Christo (142 points), Chewbacca Richardson (131 points), Heitto (118 points), Boo (111 points), Wints (108 points) and AP Politis (107 points).

A special mention goes to Boots Butenko for failing to even get a bat or a bowl in his match resulting in a measly 3 points for the round. This may be due to the playing restrictions placed on him by the Redbacks in anticipation of a long tiring season for the off-spinner. Or, much more likely, it's due to his tardiness in arriving at the game, returning from a long stint at Toolies.

The 'Georges Gilles de la Tourette's Award' is hotting up this year with another monstrous and, quite frankly, disgusting guttural bellow from Bowey after having clean bowled a Pembroke tail ender to tally up another cheap second innings wicket. The other main contender this year is one S.K. Rub-a-Dub-Dub Robbo Roberts-Robson with another show of disgust at his team mate's decision to send him on his way in a controversial runout decision. Feeling Ingman was somewhat influenced by the opposition team, S.K. proceeded to stare down Lexi while walking off the field, letting out a massive 'THAT'S BULLSHIT!!!!' allegedly heard as far away as the upper Zambezi river. Then, feeling that the neighbourhood was in dire need of early Xmas decorations, he decided to throw his gloves into a tree, his pads through the window of the local church, his shoes onto the roof of said church and finally his bat ended up decorating the weathercock of a nearby dwelling. Truly a fantastic effort and I'm sure I speak for all when I say that I am looking forward to the announcement of this year's winner at the end of season dinner.

Anywho, moving back to the Fantasy League, the top 3 managers from last round have back up their performances in an unchanged top 3 this round. Who is this manager A. Nonymous? Some say that his skin has the texture of a dolphin's, and that wherever you are in the world, if you tune your radio to 88.4, you can actually hear his thoughts.

The biggest positive movers this week were M Richo (up 15), Walshy (up 13) and the amalgamated team managed by Sam Tyler and Jack Dent (up 10). Some big negative movers were Tommy Cant, Betty Davis and Iceman Eske (do you understand the nickname yet Weeks?) who all dropped by 12 spots. Continuing his chase of this year's wooden spoon is Nick Selth and his Inadequate X1 are sitting pretty at around 2000 points off the lead, a remarkable achievement to pick a team that inadequate.

Once again, please check your team's points total and be sure to let me know if there are any discrepancies.

I'll leave you with an inspiring image of our club coach warming up for last weekend's synchronised swimming championships. Enough said...
